Pot grower's nightmare

Deputies, troopers chop down nearly $100,000 worth of pot

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

Whoever had roughly $100,000 worth of pot growing near the old Southern States building on Highway 44 is going to be mighty disappointed the next time they stop by to water their plants.

The Anderson County Sheriff's Office and Kentucky State Police used machetes Monday morning to chop down 47 fully budded marijuana plants in a secluded area almost directly behind Rite Aid.

No arrests were made, but an investigation is ongoing, according to a news release from Chief Deputy Joe Milam.

The pot patch was spotted earlier by using a Kentucky State Police helicopter, which routinely flies over Anderson and surrounding counties in search of marijuana.

"We are always looking for illegal drugs in Anderson County," said Sheriff Troy Young, who was present as officers chopped down the plants. "We're doing everything we can to stop this, and we are continuing to fight the war on drugs."

Milam said the plants eradicated Monday morning were valued at $2,000 each, making the total value $94,000.

Milam, along with Sgt. Robbie Armstrong, chopped down the plants as state police officers ensured that no small amounts of marijuana were left behind.

The location was remote but located near what appeared to be a septic lagoon that was being used as a water source.

Once the plants were chopped down, officers hauled them out of the woods and loaded them into the back of a waiting pickup truck before hauling them of to turn them.

Anyone with information about the case is asked to contact Detective Bryan Taylor at the sheriff's office at 839-4021.

Teenager admits stealing flags

Mother of Marine whose flag stolen from Healing Field hopes to speak to boy, 14

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

Misdemeanor theft charges have been filed against a 14-year-old boy who police say has admitted stealing three flags from the Healing Field memorial in Lawrenceburg.

Detective David Decker with the Anderson County Sheriff's Office cracked the case of the stolen flags, which has outraged residents and families of soldiers who are memorialized there.

On Friday, Decker, along with members of the American Legion Auxiliary, returned one of those flags to the mother of an Anderson County Marine who died while on a training exercise in the Philippines in 2007.

The mother, Julie Coubert, accepted her son's flag from Decker, and hugged Auxiliarists Shirley Thornberry, Pam Rice and Nettie Halvorson in an emotional moment in the Sheriff Troy Young's office.

Coubert said news that her late son's flag had been stolen was very upsetting, but added she isn't angry at the boy, whose name is not being released.

Marching on, perhaps to state finals

Reinvigorated band continues climb toward elite status

By Meaghan Downs
Staff writer

In the Anderson County marching band's debut competition for the 2011 season, they took home the title of reserve grand champion.

That's not necessarily something band director Patrick Brady would have envisioned happening three years ago.

When Brady came to Anderson County High School as a 23-year-old music instructor, he had with no previous experience as head director of a marching band, other than assisting as a paraprofessional for one year.

"Got my feet wet pretty quick," Brady said.

Then again, the band itself didn't have much experience, either.

"There was lots of tons of talent, but it had been neglected," Brady said of his first year of teaching at Anderson County.

Back in the '80s, Brady said, the Anderson County marching band boasted 150 members.

When Brady arrived at Anderson County High School in 2009, the marching program only had 37 students.

Now 75 Marching Bearcats take the football field during halftime, and also compete against marching bands much

Another bad audit for county

Problems with credit cards, payroll, unapproved bills

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

Last year's audit of the Anderson County Fiscal Court's finances wasn't good, and neither is the one just released by the state auditor.

From credit card purchases for items not explained on receipts to employees being paid without signatures on time cards, state Auditor Crit Luallen pointed out multiple problems with the fiscal court's financial management, just as she did the previous year.

The audit was conducted through June 30 of last year when Steve Cornish was judge-executive. Current Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway offered explanations in the audit documents that were released, but declined when asked last week to add to those comments.

The audit notes five material weaknesses of internal control, including inaccuracies in posting revenue; problems with the county's list of capital assets;

Harry Wise Road zoning debate settled, for now

Fiscal court retreats, accepts planning and zoning recommendation to keep Cann's property zoned A1

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

The zone change saga on Harry Wise Road was put to rest Monday morning during a special called meeting of the Anderson County Fiscal Court.

By a 4-3 vote, magistrates upheld a recommendation from the planning and zoning commission to keep a 16-acre tract of property there zoned A1.

The property owner, Larry Cann, has tried for the past year to have the zoning changed to A2, which would allow him to build 16 homes vs. the eight homes he could build on A1, which requires lot sizes of at least 2 acres.

Monday's meeting marked the third time magistrates debated the issue. They originally came out in support of Cann's effort, and voted to have the county attorney draft an ordinance that would have restricted Cann to build only homes on the property.

That decision outraged Cann's neighbors, who packed a subsequent fiscal court meeting to protest.

The fiscal court then agreed to hold a special meeting to hear their complaints, but a vote to leave the property zoned A1 failed when it ended in a tie.

On Monday, Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway reversed his previous stance and voted to keep the property A1. He said since his previous vote, he had discussed the issue more in depth with planning and zoning secretary Renee Evans.

"I've educated myself since last week," Conway said. "I was wrong."

Magistrate David Ruggles motioned to keep the property A1, and was joined in voting for doing so by Conway and magistrates Buddy Sims and Juretta Wells.

> "I've educated myself since last week. I was wrong."
> —Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway

Magistrates Forrest Dale Stevens, David Montgomery and Kenny Barnett voted against it.

Barnett, who was not at the previous meeting that resulted in a tie vote, said he listened to a tape of that meeting and concluded that the property is better suited for A2.

He said the idea of making a developer build on 2-acre lots causes problems down the road.

"Why make people have 2 acres?" he said, adding that many homeowners don't want to maintain that much property and it often becomes overgrown with weeds.

"Across the road from my house, 5 acres were allowed and now it's a mess," Barnett said.

While the issue appears to be settled, the number of homes Cann can build will likely change next month. Conway reiterated that the fiscal court will likely vote in November to accept planning and zoning's recommendation to allow 1-acre lots on property zoned A1, provided sewer service is in place.

He said he will support that recommendation, which would give Cann the ability to build "one or two less homes" than he would have been able to had the zoning been changed to A2.

bigger and older than they are.

"I'm competing against people that have 50 more kids than I have," Brady said. "It's tough."

It's a young group of students, Brady said. About 25 middle schoolers march with their high school peers, and only six band members will graduate this year.

"State's gonna have to watch out in a year or two," Brady said.

Last year the marching band, which competes as a 4A class band, ranked fifth in its region.

This year the band ranks third. It received three best color guard awards and three best percussion awards, and percussion almost went undefeated for the 2011 season.

Brady said in one competition the marching band was shy one-tenth of a point from tying South Oldham County High School, a state finalist in last year's state marching band contest.

Anderson County's color guard also won best overall guard in another competition, beating the previously undefeated Adair County.

"At first when they got [trophies] it was pure shock," Brady said. "But it's kind of cool, because now they almost expect them. The expectation of what I expect of them does not have to be set anymore."

The band is the closest it's ever been to making the marching band state finals, and Anderson County has never made the cut in the school's history.

A popular marching band message board, Brady said, posted predications about Anderson County's chances.

"This is the first time anyone has ever said we might make state finals," Brady said.

Brady attributes the success of this season to his staff, which includes his wife Christina Brady, who works with the color guard, and Jason Dye, who writes the percussion music and instructs the drumline.

"Being young and inexperienced, I figure I should bring in experienced people," Brady said.

Marching band practices start in late July before school starts, beginning in mid-morning until the late afternoon, with students running drills and sets for three weeks.

Even at the tail end of their marching season, band members practiced during fall break last week, running marching drills, rain or shine, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., then again from 6-8 p.m.

Brady said parents usually ask questions about the length of practices in their child's first year of marching band, but by the end of the child's time in marching band, they suggest that kids practice more.

"They've caught the bug," he said.

This year's marching program, which follows three distinct and different "movements," is titled "From Real to Surreal," based upon the life and personality of surrealist artist Salvador Dali.

The marching band begins with a very traditional, military marching band and then transforms into a more contemporary sound.

A solo flutist leads the marching band in its transition from traditional to surreal, adding objects to the marching band uniforms such as bright flowers and birds.

"He represents the catalyst of change," Brady said.

The regional competition will be held Oct. 22 at Madison Southern High School in Berea.

AUDIT

inadequate controls over payroll; inadequate control over credit card purchases; and failure to comply with state laws when making purchases.

Credit card purchases

Purchases with a Walmart credit card drew criticism from the auditor's office, including a question of why breakfast items were purchased when inmates working for the county are fed only lunch.

"Only one of six credit card statements selected for testing contained all the credit card receipts for purchases made," Luallen's office wrote.

"Per the finance officer, the food was used to feed inmates who worked at the park or animal shelter. But the receipt did not indicate this or how many inmates were fed. Without documents, it is not possible to determine if the credit card is being abused."

Then Luallen's office addressed the breakfast purchases.

"Auditors noted the purchase of several breakfast items (cereal, toaster treats, milk, bagels, etc.), but according to the inmates supervisor, [inmates] are only served lunch."

The report also questioned the purchase of six 24-packs of soft drinks in one week, saying that no notation was made on the receipt to explain why such a large amount was bought.

Conway said each incident has been investigated and that he is satisfied that the purchases were made for legitimate purposes.

He added that, "If there is any indication that credit cards are being abused, the individual abusing the authority will be dealt with immediately."

Payroll

Luallen's office cited one instance where two employees were paid incorrectly because the hours they worked didn't match the amount they were paid.

She also noted some timesheets were not signed by a supervisor, and that timesheets for umpires and scorekeepers weren't signed by a supervisor or the employee.

Another problem occurred when a jail employee worked more than 100 hours in a month, but did not receive retirement benefits.

"We found material weaknesses over payroll," Luallen's office wrote. "Each department head does not ensure that employees and supervisors have reviewed and signed timesheets before they are submitted for processing.

"In addition, payroll calculations are not reviewed after processing and before payment."

Conway responded, saying that he inspects timesheets of all department heads and his approval is attached before the payroll is written, adding that "payroll procedures will be reviewed and controls strengthened."

Purchases

Purchases made without fiscal court approval, failure to comply with state bidding procedures and the purchase of the wrong dump truck were all noted in the audit.

Luallen's office uncovered two instances where unspecified bills were paid without the approval of the fiscal court, which violates Kentucky statutes.

Her office also revealed that the fiscal court purchased a 2010 F550 truck in 2009, using a state contract from a vendor that had the price bid for a 2009 F450.

"Since the vehicle was not on the state price contract, the county should have followed bidding procedures, as required," her office wrote.

The fiscal court also purchased asphalt under a state contract, but was not able to produce a copy of the contract, and additionally did not have complete bid files available for review.

"An honest mistake was made," Conway said of the truck purchase.

Conway also said that bills paid without fiscal court approval "slipped through."

"We strive to prevent this from happening," he said.

Capital assets

Luallen's office said the fiscal court's capital assets list was misstated by nearly $1 million, which could place that property at risk.

"Not maintaining an accurate list of capital assets could cause capital assets not be insured or paying for insurance for an asset that county no longer owns," Luallen's office wrote, adding that although annual inventories were being performed, "no one was reviewing/reconciling those reports to ensure accuracy."

In his response, Conway said the county relies on its auditors to maintain a depreciation schedule, and that additions and disposals were disclosed to the auditor.

"This method could be improved upon by [fiscal court] personnel keeping the schedule and reconciling to a physical inventory of capital assets.

"We will make a concerted effort to improve our vigilance over the fixed assets list."

Posting revenue

In the audit, Luallen's office noted what it said were "errors in posting that resulted in misclassifications of certain revenue accounts," and pointed out that not all receipts were coded with an account number, which "made auditing the information more difficult as it was not always clear where receipts were posted."

Luallen's office recommended, "receipts are posted to the correct account, and that if someone other than the treasurer posts the information into the accounting records, the treasurer should check the post for accuracy."

In his response, Conway said, "Posting revenue transactions is a voluminous undertaking and occasional mis-postings do occur. We will pay particular attention to revenue accounts, especially during year-end review, to ensure the accuracy of this portion of our financial statements."

The audit is the second in as many years that shined an unfavorable light on the fiscal court. Last year, Luallen's office found several hundred thousand dollars in taxpayer funds on deposit were not insured or collateralized; that bills were not being paid on time; and several line items in the budget had negative fund balances.

FLAGS

"All I know is that it opened a lot of wounds," she said. "I'm just glad it has been found.

"I'm not angry. I would have been if it had been an older person, but kids do silly things."

Coubert said at some point, she'd like to have a chance to talk to the boy.

"Maybe he needed something like this to turn his life around," she said. "I'd like to give him a picture (of her son) and show him how he was a loving and wonderful person."

Decker, the detective, said he got a tip about the flags' whereabouts and was able to recover them Thursday evening.

He said the tip led him to a residence on Mill Creek Pike, where he conducted a search and found two of the three stolen flags.

He said the boy gave him information that led him to the third flag.

"He stored it at a residence in [Lawrenceburg]," Decker said.

Decker said he's confident that the boy acted alone in the thefts.

"We're dealing with a young man who was thinking about his actions," said Decker, who interviewed the boy for several hours.

"I think he was remorseful, but I don't think he understood the gravity of what he did and how it affected folks."

Decker, whose father served 24 years in the military, said getting the flags returned to their proper locations was personally gratifying.

"These people lost someone special to them," Decker said. "To give [the flags] back is a good feeling for everybody."

Courbert said she is thankful for the hard work put in by the sheriff's office to recover the stolen flags.

"They did a great job," she said. "I want to thank all of them for doing such a wonderful job."

Lewis' flag was reported missing last Wednesday, just days after Congressman Ben Chandler donated flags to replace two others that were stolen earlier this month.

The Healing Field is the nation's only permanent structure to honor those whose lives have been lost since the terrorist attacks of 9/11.

Located in the American Legion Park, it includes 103 flags and markers for each Kentuckian who has lost his or her life while serving in the armed forces during that time.

It was erected by the Auxiliary with American Legion Post 34.

Conway's intervention likely doomed to fail

Judge-executive to stand alone in effort to fire health director

Column as I see 'em ...

Prediction: Health Director Brandon Hurley isn't going to be fired tonight (Wednesday).

In fact, if Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway makes good on his promise to make a motion to have him fired, odds are better than 50-50 his motion won't even get a second.

Ben Carlson
General manager

Here's why: A majority of the health board serves as Hurley's enablers and, because they have allowed him to continue his destructive actions, they are now his codependents.

They can no more allow Hurley to be fired than the spouse of a gambling addict can drive past a casino or lottery kiosk. They don't really want to stop but do anyway, just to keep their addicted spouse from going through withdrawals.

If they did allow Hurley to be fired, board members would be forced to look at themselves in the mirror and realize they own a full share of the mess they stood by and allowed Hurley to create.

Hurley's supporters have known for two years of the budget crisis created by their support of a new health building, yet aside from grandstanding warnings that "Hurley needs to straighten this out," they continue to throw good money after bad and have now used all but a fraction of the department's cash reserves to keep it afloat.

Conway has spent 10 months watching, learning and studying the department's books, and has concluded that nothing short of a full-blown intervention is going to save the department — and its unwilling codependents, the taxpayers — from being destroyed.

Conway wasn't a health board member when the "we need a new building" Kool-Aid was being guzzled like sweet tea in July, and has yet to be drawn in with those suffering from codependency.

Instead, Conway has spent 10 months watching, learning and studying the department's books, and has concluded that nothing short of a full-blown intervention is going to save the department — and its unwilling codependents, the taxpayers — from being destroyed.

Trouble is, successful interventions always include like-minded people standing together.

Aside from folks in the crowd tonight, Conway will almost certainly stand alone.

What if it had been your late son's flag stolen from the Healing Field?

That's a question I asked myself a number of times over the past several weeks while reporting on head-scratching case of someone swiping flags from that wonderful-yet-somber memorial.

I asked that question of several people I know and the answers I received were almost identical to mine: "I'd kick their sorry ...," or a variation thereof.

So when I sat down last Friday to speak with a woman whose son's flag actually was stolen, the response I got was surprising and more than a little humbling.

Instead of being ready to kick you know what, Julie Coubert said, more than anything, she'd just like to sit down with the young person who stole her son's flag and speak with him.

She wants to show him her son's photo, explain his life to this young person and encourage him to make sure he learns a lesson from what he did.

She wants to let him know that one bad decision so early in life can be overcome and, like her son who fulfilled his dream of joining the Marine Corps after high school, this young person can still make good choices with his life.

Folks, I've covered about anything a news person can sink his or her teeth into, and thought I'd seen it all. But when Julie said those things I was floored.

I thanked her for her time, did another interview and headed out to my truck. Once on the road, it really hit me just what a schmuck I likely would have been had what happened to her happened to me (admit it, most of you would have, too). It also hit me that of all the news articles, sporting events and whatever else I've covered, I don't think I've seen anyone in such a trying situation act with more dignity, poise and class than Julie did that day.

I'm a hard-headed guy, so every once in a while it's good that someone like her comes along and reminds people like me of how they should act.

I'm grateful for that, and those who would have acted as foolishly as I probably would have should take a note and be thankful, too.

Culvert thief invited to attend church

To the editor:

This letter is to the man who stole the cast iron culvert from the driveway at 216 Horn Drive.

I know who you are, so don't think you got away without anyone knowing.

I really don't care about the culvert, and probably would have given it to you had you asked.

I do, however, care about you.

I forgive you for taking that which did not belong to you. I have been praying for you and invite you to the Sunday morning service at Lawrenceburg First Baptist Church to hear about God's love for you.

Company cut trees despite being told not to

To the editor:

In September, a man representing Blue Grass Energy stopped at our home. He was checking with homeowners about trees directly under or surrounding power lines.

My husband said he was asking for permission to cut down or trim these trees. He told the man he could trim but not cut the trees along our front driveway.

Those trees, water maples, were planted or put out with the help of my dad, Floyd Stratton. He passed away in 2001, so these trees are or were of great value to me.

My husband signed a card to that effect: trim, don't cut.

On Oct. 1, I came home from work to find three of the trees along my driveway cut down. I was very upset. Years of watering them during the hot, dry summers, praying they wouldn't freeze during the cold, hard winters and watching them grow year after year and they were gone in one swipe of a chainsaw.

My husband said they came by before he left to go to the recent truck pull, meaning they came to cut my trees when no one was around.

There are other landowners who were home and stopped them from cutting down their trees.

On Oct. 3, one man in a big truck pulled into our driveway. I went out and told him to get off my property. He looked surprised and asked why. He was very polite, so I showed him what had been done.

He said he didn't know who did it, or why. Another man arrived and said he didn't know, either.

That same day a pickup with three men pulled in. They walked out back of our house and I told them to get off my property. Two of them walked back to their pickup, but the third stayed and argued with me and said he was getting ready to call his supervisor.

I told him I didn't care and to get off my property.

He said I was very rude and I told him he would be rude, too, if someone cut his trees instead of trimming them like they were supposed to.

Finally, he left.

I have called Blue Grass Energy several times, and left my home and cell phone numbers, but have yet to be called back.

I've been told through speaking with others that the company cutting trees underbid the work, and they wanted to get it done as quickly as possible and get out.

I guess in the long run I'll be paying for the destruction of my own trees through higher electric bills.

Trick-or-treat hours should be set to later time

To the editor:

The celebration of Halloween climaxes with the trick-or-treaters going door to door throughout our neighborhoods.

Typically, this is done at sundown as it used to be done in Lawrenceburg.

For the past two years the time has been move to an earlier time in the evening.

This has taken some of the fun and spookiness out of the experience for everyone.

As very large supporters of Halloween, we decorate every year for this fun and spooky event.

I would love to see the time set to a little later time, maybe 6:30 p.m., so we can all experience and celebrate Halloween like we used to.

Lousy winter prediction means time to prepare

I love nature. The beautiful sounds of the morning birds serenading me, joined by the magnificent sight of fall leaves bordering the bright green hay fields, makes me stop in my tracks every time. Then, I remember that winter is coming.

Cheryl Steenerson
Columnist

For the last couple of months I've been telling people that I was hopeful for a mild winter. "We're due," I'd say. It was wishful thinking, I'm afraid. Though it's too early to check out Mother Nature's winter forecasters, the nation's meteorologists have announced their predictions and it ain't pretty.

The first map I saw had us covered with red and in large type said "Ice over Snow." Shall we all groan together? It seems La Nina is back in full force for this winter, which usually means a lot of precipitation. They say the hardest hit areas will be the Midwest and the Great Lakes. Oh boy.

Predictions of Arctic blasts, along with heavier than normal snowfall (topped with ice), helps to kick me into high gear to get those outdoor chores done, especially since it also means a cold, wet spring.

We must play the hand we're dealt, but we can put a few jokers up our sleeves now. Take a walk outside and look at your nearby trees. Think of their branches hanging heavy with snow and ice. If they fall what happens? Look at the trunks and their angles. If the whole tree comes down what will it do?

It's much easier to break out the chain saw now. Solid footing goes a long way to ensure safety. Bring out the ladder and clean those gutters. Leaves can clog the runoff, so snow and ice weigh down the gutters to a breaking point. Not something I want to deal with in subfreezing temperatures.

Since I live on a hill, with a shaded drive, I plan on having to hike up a bunch. I've been stocking up on the heavy groceries and supplies for a month. A 40-pound bag of dog food grows heavier exponentially, as I drag it up an 800 foot, 60 percent grade, even with a sled.

I have my oil lamps, and extra oil to fill them, located and cleaned. I'm stocked up on batteries. I have my window coverings prepared. The pantry is stocked and the coolers are clean and close. Coolers can serve as outdoor refrigerators, if the power goes out.

I still have to prep and prime the generator and load up on wood, but then, I'm ready. The last ice storm knocked the power out for eight days. I just wish I could find a way to keep the toilet seat warm.

In the garden, I'm still uncovered, but not for long. The winter predictions have made me change the way I'm going to cover those raised beds. I had planned on attaching the plastic to the top of the wooden frames, like a Tupperware lid. Now, I'm going to line them, like a waterbed liner.

I'll still staple the plastic to the wood, I'll just do it lower, on the inside of the frame. With the plastic laying on top of the soil, it can take all the weight of the snow and ice. Man, I'm getting chills just thinking about it.

While you're rummaging through the closets counting blankets and flashlights, start a pile for things you don't want anymore. The Humane Society's annual rummage sale is the Saturday after Thanksgiving and donations are always welcome.

Now, get going. Mother Nature will bring Old Man Winter very soon and it's much more comforting to say those two words "I'm prepared,", instead of "Oh _ _ _ _!

Happy growing.

No first day of school digital photo albums. No timeline of my uncreative Halloween costumes. No pictures of me bawling on Santa's lap.

We want to preserve and protect these kinds of memories for our reader, both online and in print.

The newspaper's job is to inform, but it should also be interactive on all relevant platforms of communication.

With 800 million users, I think Facebook is pretty relevant when it comes to sharing news, tips, ideas and community photos.

As you're checking your news feed and commenting on a friend's status on Halloween, take a second to post a high-resolution photo of your 2011 Halloween experience on our Anderson NewsHound page. Describe who's in the picture, where you are and what you're doing.

On Wednesday, look for your photo in our print and online editions of the newspaper.

If it's easier for you to e-mail photos, or bring physical copies into the office on a Tuesday morning, feel free to do so.

I look forward to seeing how creative Anderson County gets when it comes to celebrating Halloween.

And if you're dressing up like a mad scientist this year, just remember. I came up with that idea first.

Signs removed from new civil offense ordinance

By Meaghan Downs
Staff writer

If at first you don't follow procedure, vote again.

After failing to follow proper voting procedure in its Oct. 10 meeting, the city council voted to approve a new civil offense ordinance for the second time in a special-called meeting Monday afternoon, this time with a few changes.

The council unanimously approved a different version of the civil offense ordinance than what passed Oct. 10, voting to exclude sign violations from being classified as civil offenses, and lowering the maximum fine penalties for contested violations to $20-200 from $25-250.

Mayor Edwinna Baker, who was absent during the last council meeting, said she had been speaking with council member Steve Rucker about the Oct. 10 proceedings when Rucker mentioned the civil offense ordinance vote.

She asked Rucker if city clerk Robbie Hume had taken roll call after the first and second motions to take the civil offense ordinance off the table, which is standard voting procedure.

She said Rucker didn't think the council had, but could not remember.

Baker said she then spoke with Hume, city attorney Robert Myles and council member Sandy Goodlett and reviewed council notes to confirm that a voting error had been made.

Without calling roll call after the first and second motions, the ordinance was never officially brought off the table for discussion.

> "That was inadvertent. There was a lot of flying back and forth and it slipped past our notice. Things like that shouldn't slip past our notice, but sometimes they do."
> —City attorney Robert Myles

"It was no fault anybody's," Baker said, adding that this kind of procedural error had never occurred with the council during her time as mayor.

"That was inadvertent," Myles said. "There was a lot of flying back and forth and it slipped past our notice.

"Things like that shouldn't slip past our notice, but sometimes they do."

The new civil offense ordinance states that the five-member Code Enforcement Board has the authority to "enforce any ordinance of the local government by classifying a violation of the ordinance as a civil offense."

Chapter 11 sign ordinance violations, however, will still be classified as class B misdemeanor criminal offenses through district court until a new sign ordinance is passed, and individuals may be fined up to $250 daily plus 90 days in jail.

Violations designated as civil offenses under the new city ordinance, including nuisance and littering, carry daily fines of $10-100 if uncontested. The council voted to decrease the maximum fine for contesting violations to $20-200, and each day constitutes a separate fine.

Goodlett, who made the first motion to exclude sign ordinance violations as civil offense and decrease the maximum fine, said he wished he had more information at the last council meeting, and would like to exempt Chapter 11 violations until the current sign ordinance is re-done.

Council member Ken Evans said he agreed with Goodlett, but wanted a timeline on future sign ordinance discussion.

"It'll lay out there until next year until you get some teeth in it," Evans said.

Goodlett agreed.

"I'd love to be able to say we'd do it in a two month period, but I'd have to have a crystal ball," Goodlett said.

The Anderson County Chamber of Commerce and the council's public works committee met Oct. 14 to discuss the chamber's sign ordinance proposal. Chamber President Cindy Peterson and chamber committee member John Reynolds, attended the public works committee meeting, along with public works committee members Tommy Vaughn and Bobby Durr.

Baker, Myles, Hume, Bluegrass Area District Development planner Beth Jones and code enforcement officer and county building inspector Doug Ingram also attended the meeting.

Recommendations on behalf of both chamber representatives and council members for a new sign ordinance will now go before the planning and zoning board.

Further meetings between the chamber, council and planning and zoning are to be announced.

"Even though I know it seems like a long, drawn out process, I can guarantee you that we have been working diligently," Pam Rice, executive director of the chamber, said.

She recommended that the council vote to exclude the sign ordinance in its second reading of the civil offense ordinance, and she expressed the chamber's appreciation for last Friday's meeting.

"We were trying to do what was good for the county and city governments, as well as the chamber," Rice said of the chamber's sign ordinance proposal.

The civil offense ordinance will become effective upon its passage and advertisement in The Anderson News.

South Anderson Water District seeks hefty rate increases

If granted, minimum bill to jump nearly 12 percent

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

South Anderson Water District customers will see significant increases in their water bills if proposed new rates are approved.

The minimum bill for customers using less than 2,000 gallons per month will increase 11.8 percent, going from $16.92 to $18.93 each month.

Those who use what is considered the average amount of water each month — 4,500 gallons — will see their water bills jump 12 percent, an increase from $42.15 to $53.75.

The requested increases are the result of several factors, according the Ken Taylor, the district's engineer from Kenvirons Inc. in Frankfort.

He said one is the ongoing effort to provide public water to about 40 residences that don't currently have it, along with increases in the price the district is paying for water it purchases from the City of Lawrenceburg and Frankfort Plant Board.

"There have been some pass-through [increases]," he said, "but it has been five or six years since the last general rate increase."

Part of the increase will be used to construct a 250,000 gallon water tower and install about 21 miles of water lines that will provide water to 40 additional households. Once completed it will leave just a handful of Anderson County residents without public water.

The district does not produce its own water. Instead, it buys water from the city and the Frankfort Plant Board.

Taylor said the district pays $2.64 for every 1,000 gallons it buys from the city up to 8 million gallons.

It then pays $2.48 for every 1,000 gallons it purchases thereafter. He said the district currently purchases about 12 million gallons a year from the city.

The district pays the Frankfort Plant Board $1.90 for every 1,000 gallons it buys, and averages about 1.9 million gallons each year.

The water district must first get the increased approved by the state's public service commission.

To reach the commission for comments, call 502-564-3940 or mail Box 615, 211 Sower Blvd., Frankfort KY 40602.

Health department plans open house, ribbon cutting

A ribbon cutting ceremony and open house is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 25 from 5-7 p.m. at the new health department, located at 1180 Glensboro Road.

The public is welcome.

Local plant considered for award

The Lawrenceburg General Cable plant is one of two owned by the company that has been selected for a magazine's "Best Plants" competition, the company announced.

The local plant was selected along with one Rhode Island, company officials said.

"We are excited to have two General Cable plants represented in 'IndustryWeek's' Best Plants finalist list this year," said Mark Thackeray, senior vice president of North American operations.

"General Cable's lean manufacturing and six sigma initiatives have continued to drive major improvements throughout our company. We hope to have another plant or two receive IndustryWeek's 2011 Best Plants Award and become recognized as one of the 10 best manufacturing plants in North America."

Student attends conference

From staff reports

Ashley Whattenbarger of Lawrenceburg, a junior at Eastern Kentucky University, was one of two EKU risk management and insurance students who attended the annual Gamma Iota Sigma Presidents' Conference in Hartford, Conn., earlier this year.

Each year the conference serves as a kick-off to a new academic year. It is a forum for leadership development and an opportunity for attendees to network, discuss event and fundraising ideas, and receive updates from Grand Chapter.

Whattenbarger, EKU Gamma Iota Sigma chapter secretary, spent the weekend honing leadership skills and expanding professional networks.

"Gamma Iota Sigma and the risk management program at EKU have already presented many great opportunities for me future career in insurance," said Whattenbarger. "The GIS Presidents' Conference was a resourceful networking advantage and allowed us to meet professionals and other students in the industry.

"The conference provided us with techniques to recruit new members, fundraise, learn about scholarship and internship opportunities, and get involved in other events," she added. "Overall, the weekend was very helpful for our future as individuals and an organization."

In March 2012, her story "Hearth Smart" will be published in "Chicken Soup for the Soul Stay-at-Home Moms."

Lewis has a journalism degree from Eastern Kentucky University and has been published in several Kentucky newspapers and magazines.

She lives with her husband Jesse and two children, Andrew, 5, and Gracie, 1.

Stay safe this Halloween

From staff reports

It's time again for the creepy decorations, falling leaves, endless costumes, and lit Jack-o-lanterns. As families across the country begin to prepare for what has become an increasingly popular holiday, the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) is reminding everyone to take a few simple safety precautions in order to ensure a fun, safe, and not too scary Halloween.

NFPA offers the following safety tips to help keep horror from striking your home this season:

· If making your own costume, choose material that won't easily ignite if it comes into contact with heat or flame. If your child is wearing a mask, make sure the eye holes are large enough so they can see out.

· Provide children with flashlights to carry for lighting or glow sticks as part of their costume.

· Dried flowers, cornstalks and crepe paper are highly flammable. Keep these and other decorations well away from all open flames and heat sources, including light bulbs.

· It is safest to use a flashlight or battery-operated candles in a Jack-o-lantern. If you use a real candle, use extreme caution. Make sure children are watched at all times when candles are lit. When lighting candles inside Jack-o-lanterns, use long fireplace-style matches or a utility lighter. Be sure to place lit pumpkins well away from anything that can burn and far enough out of the way of trick-or-treaters, doorsteps, walkways and yards.

· If you choose to use candle decorations, make sure to keep them well attended at all times.

· Use flashlights as alternatives to candles or torch lights when decorating walkways and yards. They are much safer for trick-or-treaters, whose costumes may brush against the lighting.

· If your children are going to Halloween parties at others' homes, have them look for ways out of the home and plan how they would get out in an emergency.

· Children should always go trick-or-treating with a responsible adult.

· Remind children to stay together as a group and walk from house to house.

· Make a rule that children will not eat any treat until it has been brought home and examined by a grown-up.

Members of the Anderson County Fiscal Court

Independent Auditor's Report

We have audited the accompanying financial statements of the governmental activities, each major fund, and the aggregate remaining fund information of Anderson County, Kentucky, as of and for the year ended June 30, 2010, which collectively comprise the County's basic financial statements, as listed in the table of contents. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Anderson County Fiscal Court. Our responsibility is to express opinions on these financial statements based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, the standards applicable to financial audits contained in Government Auditing Standards issued by the Comptroller General of the United States, and the Audit Guide for Fiscal Court Audits issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinions.

As described in Note 1, Anderson County, Kentucky, prepares its financial statements in accordance with the modified cash basis, which is a comprehensive basis of accounting other than accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the respective financial position of the governmental activities, each major fund, and the aggregate remaining fund information of Anderson County, Kentucky, as of June 30, 2010, and the respective changes in financial position and cash flows, where applicable, thereof for the year then ended in conformity with the basis of accounting described in Note 1.

The county has not presented the management's discussion and analysis that the Governmental Accounting Standards Board (GASB) has determined is necessary to supplement, although not required to be part of, the basic financial statements. The budgetary comparison information is not a required part of the basic financial statements but is supplementary information required by GASB. We have applied certain limited procedures, which consisted principally of inquiries of management regarding the methods of measurement and presentation of the budgetary comparison information. However, we did not audit it and express no opinion on it.

Our audit was conducted for the purpose of forming opinions on the financial statements that collectively comprise Anderson County, Kentucky's basic financial statements. The accompanying supplementary information, combining fund financial statements, is presented for purposes of additional analysis and is not a required part of the basic financial statements. The combining fund financial statements have been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audit of the basic financial statements and, in our opinion, are fairly stated in all material respects in relation to the basic financial statements taken as a whole.

In accordance with Government Auditing Standards, we have also issued our report dated July 25, 2011on our consideration of Anderson County, Kentucky's internal control over financial reporting and on our tests of its compliance with certain provisions of laws, regulations, contracts, grant agreements, and other matters. The purpose of that report is to describe the scope of our testing of internal control over financial reporting and compliance and the results of that testing, and not to provide an opinion on the internal control over financial reporting or on compliance. That report is an integral part of an audit performed in accordance with Government Auditing Standards and should be considered in assessing the results of our audit.

Based on the results of our audit, we present the accompanying comments and recommendations included herein, which discusses the following report comments:

2010-01 The Anderson County Fiscal Court Should Ensure Posting To Revenue Accounts Is Accurate
2010-02 The Anderson County Fiscal Court Should Maintain Complete And Accurate Capital Asset Schedules
2010-03 The Anderson County Fiscal Court Should Improve Controls Over Payroll
2010-04 The Anderson County Fiscal Court Should Improve Controls Over Credit Card Purchases
2010-05 The Anderson County Fiscal Court Should Comply With State Law When Making Purchases

Respectfully submitted,

Crit Luallen

Small businesses utilize social media marketing

By Meaghan Downs
Staff writer

When it comes to marketing a small business in a difficult economy, it's best to be on the cusp of what's new.

That's what Pam Leet, co-owner of Lovers Leap Winery with husband Logan, was looking for when she first heard of the online coupon hub Groupon about a year ago.

"We're trying to stay on top of what is the biggest and the best, the biggest bang for the buck," she said.

Groupon is a website that offers members, usually notified by social media or e-mail, daily coupons they can purchase within a specific time frame.

Along with fellow online coupon website Living Social, Groupon usually targets a select number of larger cities. Lawrenceburg businesses, however, have been featured underneath the category umbrella of cities like Lexington and Louisville, bringing out-of-county customers to participating Anderson County businesses.

"When social networking came on board, I was skeptical in the beginning," Leet said, "but I was also skeptical of the Internet when it first came out."

Groupon coupons offered to customers must have a markdown of services or retail of more than 50 percent, Leet said, with the company accruing half of all revenue made from the discount.

The customer is savvy, Leet said, so businesses need to know their customer is before offering a potential bad deal.

"The customer out there is very smart, very savvy; they know a true deal," she said.

Online coupons like Groupon or Living Social deals can help businesses like Leet's target specific demographics that they might not otherwise reach.

In the instance of the winery, most people who enjoy a day of wine tasting are over 50 years old, with disposable income.

However, the fastest growing wine drinkers, Leet said, are millennials.

"And you're not going to reach millennials with traditional marketing," she said.

After Lovers Leap offered their first Groupon last March, they've seen about the 80 percent return they were promised by the company.

They also offered a Living Social deal that did well, but did not provide the numbers that the Groupon coupon did, Leet said.

"That was one of the biggest eye-openers we have ever imagined, it was huge," Leet said. "It was by far the best thing we've ever done. It not only pulls people to the winery, it pulls people to Anderson County."

Kathie Litherland, owner and sole cupcake baker behind Kathie's Creations in Lawrenceburg, said she wasn't sure if customers wanted to deal with the hassle of traveling to pick up her cupcakes.

For Litherland doesn't have a storefront for her baking business. In fact her business, managed from her kitchen, only began about 3-4 weeks ago.

"I would never be able to get advertising like that on my own," Litherland said. "It's worth it, especially with getting my name out there."

In order for her to be partnered with the company, Litherland had to provide a tax ID, website and social media information, like Facebook or Twitter.

She said in the two days she had the coupon available, Kathie's Creations received about 60 orders with eight hours more to go before the deal expired.

Kathie Litherland opened her new baking business, Kathie's Creations, about 3-4 weeks ago with a little help from her mother, best friend and online coupon hub Groupon.

Kathie said she's not new in baking, but she's new in the business world and was worried about starting her own business.

"Now that I know there are things that can get me business, I'm not as worried," she said.

Maureen Bryant, owner of Mo's Uppercuts hair salon, said bringing customers in from different counties was important,

"Sometimes a smaller town's okay. Just because we're a smaller town doesn't mean we don't have good, quality stuff," she said.

Bryant advertises in a variety of ways, but is also looking to branch out on Groupon, with assistance from Litherland.

"You need to do what you can to spark people's interests," Bryant said.

Leet, who has a marketing background, said the nature of her business may have contributed to the success of their Groupon discount, and it might not work for all businesses who don't offer certain retail products or services.

If done too frequently, she said, the market can get diluted.

"There's no telling what's going to be out there tomorrow," Leet said. "You've always got to be looking for the next new thing."

4-H shooters excel at state contest

From staff reports

Twelve 4-H members represented Anderson County at the State 4-H Shooting Sports Contest held Sept. 17-18.

They competed in several divisions including archery compound bare bow, archery bow hunter, archery target bow and shotgun. Anderson County had several top individual scorers as well as two state champion teams.

Justin Mehs placed third in the 15-18 age category of the bow hunter division. Ethan Steele placed first in the 12-14 age category of the target bow division, and was also the overall high scorer for all age groups.

Michala Frederick placed third overall in the bare bow division and Chance Wayne placed second overall in the bare bow division.

Other 4-H members that participated were Nikki Nivison, Becky Frederick, Cody Able, Jacob Able, Ruth Edwards, Annie Edwards, Luke Edwards and Cameron Peyton.

The 4-H Shooting Sports club meets throughout the year with certified coaches teaching the disciplines of archery, shotgun, .22 rifle and black powder.

Not reading Bible a dangerous place for professing Christians to be

Jess Thompson
Guest columnist

Have you ever read the entire Bible? How often do you read the Bible?

Only 16 percent of churchgoers read the Bible daily and 25 percent of churchgoers don't read the Bible at all, according to Read the Bible For Life.

How can we call ourselves Christians if we are not diligent in studying the inspired word of God?

Paul writes in 1 Timothy 4:16, "Watch your life and doctrine closely. Persevere in them, because if you do, you will save both yourself and your hearers."

I often discuss the Bible with friends and am taken aback by professing Christians who do not actually know the Bible or its teachings. Furthermore, I have spoken with various people who again are professing Christians who don't read the Bible, but have personal "interpretations" of "feelings" of what they think of the Bible.

This is a dangerous place for any Christian to be. Sharing Christian truths is not always easy.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth," 2 Timothy 2:15.

We, as Christians, need to be in constant prayer and study to fulfill God's commands to share his word. In Revelation, Christ describes spewing lukewarm Christians from his mouth.

Now, how often do you read the Bible?

The English word "church" comes from a Greek word ekklesia and means "a calling." It carries with it the idea of an assembly, a gathering together for a particular reason. The term was not a unique one but one that dealt with a group of people coming together for a particular cause. It could be a gathering for a game, a military assembly etc.

When the Scripture used the term church it had reference to the calling out of the kingdom of darkness into the kingdom of God's dear son (Col. 1:13). This gathering is known as the body of Christ over which Christ is the head (Col. 1:18; Eph. 2:33-23). Our Lord had promised his disciples that he was going to have/build his assembly or congregation of people (Matt. 16:18).

The term church is used in two different senses in the Bible. The church is spoken of in the universal sense, dealing with all the saved in all areas (Eph. 1:22-23; Col. 1:18). The sense in which the term is used is locally. Notice the different local churches that are addressed in the Scripture: Rome, Corinth, Ephesus, Thessalonica, Colossians, Philippi and Galatia. They were the body of Christ in all these different areas, and they all practiced the same things (Col. 3:17).

Jesus emphasized that this gathering of saints should take precedents in our lives. Matthew 6:33 says "seek you first the kingdom of God." Does the Lord's church take first place in your life or do the things of this world take control? Two choices, God (his church) or Satan and his damnable ways.

Wealthy Coin Collectors Want Your Old Coins

CLOSE TO UNLIMITED FUNDS FOR COINS AND COIN COLLECTIONS

By Laura Roberts, staff writer.

Got Coin? It might be just the time to cash in.

This week starting Tuesday and continuing through Friday The American Rare Collectibles Association will be purchasing all types of silver and gold coins direct from the public. All types are welcome and the event is free. Collectors will be on hand to identify and sort your coins. Then the quality or grade will be determined. According to collectors, the grade being higher makes the coin worth more money. With the current gold and silver market, high prices are being paid for older coins too. Any dollar, half, quarter and dime coins minted in the US 1964 and before are more desirable. These automatically should be brought in.

The coins worth is determined by the rarity and the grade. Old silver dollars are worth a great premium right now. Even well worn and heavily circulated ones are bringing good premium. Franklin and Kennedy halves, Washington quarters, Mercury and Roosevelt dimes are all worth many times their face value. While older types like bust, seated, liberties and barber coins are worth even more.

Gold coins worth more than weight. This country did not start minting coins until 1792. Before that trade was conducted using gold dust and nuggets. The government opened the first mints and began distributing the coins in 1792. By the beginning of the 19th century coins and paper currency were widespread and our monetary system was here to stay. In 1933 Roosevelt required all banking institutions to turn in all gold coins. Once all banks turned in this gold, the President raised the gold standard from $20 per ounce to $33. This was his way of stimulating the economy during the great depression. However, gold coins were never redistributed after the recall. Not all gold coins were turned in. Many people chose to keep their gold.

These gold coins are sought after by collectors today and bring many times the face value. There are also some key dates which command premium prices. Other types of coins will also be purchased including foreign coins, Indian head cents, 2 cent pieces, half dimes, 3 cent pieces, buffalo nickels, 1940s nickels, V nickels, gold foreign coins, to name a few.

Collectors warn, please do not try to clean the coins. This will decrease their value.

Technological equipment allows us to receive offers on rare items from collectors thousands of miles from the event.

We buy all old pocket watches & wristwatches

APMR will open Tuesday at 10AM. The event runs every day through Friday.

The Anderson News

Anderson County trainer Tracy Briscoe, left, tends to sophomore Ross Cox after Cox took a wicked hit while trying to catch a pass. Cox was held out of action in the second half, a major blow to Anderson's chances for a comeback against Franklin County.

Speed makes Flyers scary good

Missed safety big, not everything

Notes written while juggling the remote over the weekend ...

Give Franklin County a lot of credit. The Flyers have as much speed as any team that has played at Anderson County in a long time and Ryan Timmons showed why he's considered one of the cream of the crop in the class of 2013.

John Herndon
Sports editor

Suffice it to say, Timmons is a jet, one of the fastest I have ever seen play against Anderson County.

The 56-24 decision emphatically gave Franklin the district championship that many were saying should just be mailed to Anderson County in the preseason.

Beyond that, Franklin had many players play big roles. That is the kind of effort a team has to have to win a district or regional crown.

And, let's face it. Franklin is almost scary good with all that speed.

That being said, you have to wonder how much what appeared to be a terrible call early in the game would have made. From the press box, it certainly appeared Franklin County punt returner James Maddox was brought down in the end zone for what would have been a safety. That would have given Anderson a 2-0 lead, and early in the game, both teams were moving at will.

There is little question it would have been a big psychological boost

Would it have made a difference?

We'll never know.

And, that being said as well Anderson still had plenty of chances early and tying one call to the final 32-point deficit is groping at straws.

For my money, Anderson really deflated when Ross Cox went out after being shaken up on a monster hit late in the first half. Anderson was down 28-17 at the time and still had some life, but it seemed that the loss of someone who had been making some big plays to that time took its toll on the Bearcats.

Will find out what Bearcats are made of

We are going to see what Anderson County is made of this week. The Bearcats are beaten up a bit, but will have to suck it up and turn in a big time performance at East Jessamine on Friday night. With East coming off an unexpected loss to crosstown rival and previously winless West Jessamine, you have to figure the Jaguars are going to be ready to make amends for that.

Since the winner of the Anderson-East Jessamine game will be a two-seed in the upcoming state playoffs, this one should be a dandy.

Fond memories of game at East Jessamine

One of the early games in Mark Peach's tenure that pointed to the fact that Peach was making progress in getting his "can do" attitude through to his players

Anderson had the chance go ahead in the fourth quarter but could not get its offense going and East Jessamine prevailed, 36-20.

That night, though, I saw players truly hurting after a loss and I knew Peach was making strides.

Anderson girls' soccer showed toughness

Toughness is not limited to male athletes.

In fact, if you want to talk about toughness personified, you can zero in on the Anderson County girls' soccer team and its win over Franklin Coun-

FOOTBALL PREVIEW

Bearcats looking for advantage in trip to East Jessamine

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Just like nearly everyone thought it would, Anderson County's football game at East Jessamine on Friday night will play a major role in the Kentucky post-season landscape.

But unlike the pre-season publications, including The Anderson News, which saw this one as the showdown for the district championship, it will just be for second place in Class 5A, District 6. And that is almost as big as winning the title.

Friday, the Bearcats will be traveling to East Jessamine for the first time in six years to face a team smarting from an 18-13 upset at the hands of West Jessamine.

The same West Jessamine that Anderson had beaten 72-18 the week before.

East was without stellar running back Cameron Thomas, who some were touting as the best in Kentucky before the season started. Thomas, who has already gained 1,699 yards, the best in Class 5A so far this year, in addition to the 2,454 he got a year ago, hurt his knee in a game with Montgomery County two weeks ago and missed the West Jessamine contest. His status for this week's game is not known.

Still, people were scratching their heads at how East, a team that has been ranked in the state's Top 10 this year, fell to a

Ethan Kelly (8) finds a big hole in the Franklin County line made by Spencer Ruggles (80) and Tristan Ashburn (15). Kelly took it to the house for a 78-yard touchdown on this play but Franklin County's speed was too much for the Bearcats in a 56-24 final.

Franklin torches Anderson for district title

Timmons sizzles for 175 yards, three scores

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Everything anyone wanted to know about Franklin County's romp past Anderson County on Friday night could be found on the stat sheet.

The story of Franklin's 56-24 win for the Class 5A, District 6 championship was right there, shouting for all to take a look: Ryan Timmons, eight carries, 175 yards, three touchdowns. An average of 21.9 yards per carry.

Not a bad night for the junior wide receiver who is considered one of the top talents in Kentucky.

"Timmons didn't even catch a pass," Anderson coach Mark Peach said.

When you are having a night like that running the ball, who needs receptions?

Timmons, the state 100-meter champion in track last year, motored 79 yards for a touchdown midway through the first quarter, but stuck the dagger in Anderson's heart with a 22-yard burst midway through the third frame to put the Flyers up 42-17.

By the time Franklin was done, the Flyers had totaled 562 yards, hit the Bearcats for four scoring plays of 35 yards or more and hung the most points on the Bearcats since 2003.

The margin of defeat was the worst Anderson had suffered since falling to Lexington Catholic, 37-0, in the final game of the 2006 season.

Timmons might have his pick of colleges when he finishes his high school career. But Peach was quick to note, "They had other people step up too."

Daniel Andeson ran for 55 yards and a touchdown and took a screen pass from Logan Woodside before going 60 yards for another store. Bruising fullback Chris Roberts powered his way to 75 yards and a score while Greg Maupin hauled in three passes for 74 yards and a score that put Anderson into an insurmountable hole in the third quarter.

Woodside, a former Anderson player, hit on 9-of-15 passes for 207 yards and three touchdowns.

Everything worked for the Flyers while Anderson must regroup for a huge trip to East Jessamine.

For the first 20 minutes Friday night, the Bearcats and Flyers had put on a show worthy of a standing room only crowd that ringed Warford Stadium.

The teams traded leads

GIRLS' SOCCER

History lives as Lady Bearcats upset Franklin in district semis

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

FRANKFORT – Anderson County learned from history, but Franklin County was doomed to repeat it Tuesday night.

Putting together an incredible defensive effort, the Lady Bearcats upset second-seeded Franklin, 1-0, in the semi-finals of the District 25 Tournament, played at Sower Soccer Complex in Frankfort.

The Lady Bearcats, the No. 3 seed, lost to top-seeded Woodford County in the final, 1-0. See the story on page B5.

Anderson's Taylor Clark lofted a 30-yard shot into the upper-right corner of the goal for the game's only goal with 24:40 left in the first half. With an miserly defense, the Lady Bearcats made the goal stand to avenge a 1-0 home field loss to Franklin on Sept. 21.

Most importantly, Anderson advances to the Region 13 tournament, which begins next week. It is the 12th regional trip in Coach Jason Earnest's 13 years as head coach. It was the third straight season and the fourth time in five years that Anderson had eliminated the Lady Flyers.

See more photos at www.theandersonnews.com.

"We talked about that a lot," Earnest said of the rivalry's recent history. "When we got our goal, we felt it would put a lot of pressure on them."

After a throw-in to Maddie Ruble, Clark took a return pass and launched her shot from leads four times until Franklin had taken a 21-17 advantage when Woodside and Anderson connected.

Two plays later, Anderson's Seth Carmichael found Ross Cox along the right sideline for a 62-yard gain at the Franklin 5. Unfortunately for the Bearcats, a holding penalty nullified the gain and pushed the Bearcats back to their own 14. When the Bearcats could not move, Carmichael, who has punted consistently all season, shanked one out of bounds at the Anderson 28.

Six plays later, Woodside found Sean Jarboe open on a third-and-6 situation for the final 13 yards. Zach Durham's kick made it 28-17.

Anderson was never closer.

"We had some chances after that," Peach noted.

Anderson drove to the Franklin 31 but stalled on fourth-and-3 with 33 seconds to go in the half.

However, Anderon lost Cox, who took a vicious hit as he tried to haul in a pass near mid-field. Franklin was called for an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty for excessive celebration but the damage had been done.

"Cox had been playing well for us," Peach said.

It was not the kind of ending anyone had expected. In both of the major statewide computer polls last week, Franklin was listed as a slight favorite. Early, it seemed the polls were right.

But Franklin got an early break that might have set the tone.

When Anderson was unable to score on its first drive, Carmichael punted 44 yards inside the Franklin 5. Returner James Maddox tried to field the ball, bobbled it and retreated into his end zone before bringing the ball out to the one.

The Anderson faithful yelled for a safety to no avail. Timmons motored 79 yards for the first score three plays later.

Anderson answered when Ethan Kelly weaved through several small holes in the Franklin defense on his way to a 78-yard jaunt of his own just 55 seconds later.

But in the end, Franklin simply had too many horses. "Our loss was not because of the lack of effort," Peach said.

Game notes

Anderson was without running back Granville Hayes and kicker Bill Rose.

Hayes had suffered an ankle injury the week before against West Jessamine and was held out of action.

Rose was serving a two-game suspension because of being red-carded during the Anderson soccer team's final game. While suspensions are usually served in the same sport, a senior, such as Rose, is required to sit out two games in other sports. He will be out of action this week at East Jessamine as well.

previously winless team.

"It is just a classic example of how in football if you don't show up with emotion and physicality and the other team does, you can have a tough night," Anderson coach Mark Peach says. "All you have to do is put in the tape when (East Jessamine) played Franklin, Montgomery and Woodford and you cannot help but be impressed."

The comparative scores, aside from West Jessamine, suggest it should be one that goes to the wire. Anderson beat Montgomery 31-14 while East topped the Indians 44-35. The Bearcats whipped Woodford, 31-13, while East Jessamine rolled to a 21-0 win over the same team. And in a game that should raise a lot of eyebrows, East Jessamine led Franklin County at the half before losing 40-29. Franklin routed Anderson last weekend.

"Thomas is a fantastic football player," Peach said. "They have plenty of other excellent football players."

Peach named fullback-linebacker Seth Hunt, lineman Oleh Markovich and running backs-linebackers Hayden Tatman and Blake Hinkel. He says they "are just as talented as anyone in our district."

The Jaguars do nothing fancy. Coach Mike Bowlin has played simple line-it-up-and-knock-you-back football for years and this is no different.

Peach said his team will have to regroup after being buzzed by the Franklin County last Friday. "Obviously, we were disappointed," he said, "but I told the guys that we cannot let one game have a bearing on the rest of our season. If we can secure the two seed, we are still in a good spot for the playoffs."

And that is what is on the line. Winning the district is not in reach, but second place and at least one home game in the upcoming state tournament. The winner will be home for a first round game against South Oldham, while the loser will most likely have to go to Conner for the first round of the playoffs.

The bottom line is that both teams control their own destinies Friday night: Win and still get a good playoff draw. Lose and fight an uphill battle all the way.

Injury report

Anderson was without second leading rusher Granville Hayes on Friday against Franklin and lost play-making receiver Ross Cox when he took a vicious hit late in the first half. Both are expected to be back, as are some other players who have experienced injuries this year.

"Darius Harvey and Mackenzie Morris are back. We believe Granville has a shot at being back this week and Ross has been improving each day," Peach said.

"I have been very proud of the kids who have stepped up to replace the guys who have gone down. Ross Cox stepped in for Granville, Blake Curtsinger stepped in for Ross, Justin Moffitt stepped in for Mackenzie Morris and then Jarod Cubert stepped in for Moffitt. The list goes on and on but I have been happy with our guys effort."

ty in the 25th District semi-finals.

This was the year someone was supposed to catch up to Anderson County.

Ever since the state realigned in time for the 2004 season, it had been almost a foregone conclusion that Anderson County and Woodford County would be playing for the district title.

They did again last week, but it was not supposed to be that way. This was the year someone was supposed to knock off the Lady Bearcats. Most likely, it would have been Franklin County, which beat Anderson in the regular season.

But last Tuesday, the Anderson girls showed the mental, and physical, toughness of a champion as they turned back Franklin for a berth in the regional tournament.

On a night when Franklin was coming with relentless pressure, the Lady Bearcats rarely bent and never broke.

And as time ticked closer and closer to the final horn, Anderson showed what tradition does when the Lady Bearcats became a supremely confident group.

They had a slew of injuries in the district finals and were going into last night's regional opener unsure of who would be in the lineup but were upbeat about their match with Tates Creek.

"There is a great feeling among this team and what we can accomplish," Coach Jason Earnest said. "We just have to believe and go out and do it."

Then he talked about goalie Emily Mager, who had to be carried off the field following a knee injury against Woodford in the district final.

"Mager told me she is playing, no matter what," Earnest said with a laugh. I love her competitive spirit."

Me too.

And last Tuesday, that spirit had taken over every player wearing red, white and navy blue.

Still looking for free-lancers

If you think you have what it takes to write or take pictures, I would really like to talk with you. While fall sports are winding down now, we will have plenty of opportunities for people use their talents covering Anderson County sports in winter and spring.

Our one-person sports department – that's me – can't possibly get to everything. Such was the case last week when three district tournaments were going on at the same time and then I was down with a virus for a few days. We had no one to cover boys' and girls' soccer Wednesday or Thursday and I had already missed the volleyball tournament because of a schedule conflct.

We have lots of teams and many opportunities. If you want to give it a try, drop me a note at jpherndon@theandersonnews.com.

Season ends with loss to Shelby County

From staff reports

Homestanding Shelby County ended Anderson County's hope of getting to the Eighth Region tournament with a straight-set win in the 30th District volleyball tournament last Tuesday. The Lady Rockets advanced to the district final with a 25-20, 25-22 win.

Shelby fell to crosstown rival Collins in the final.

Anderson ended the season at 12-23.

Lady Bearcat Sierra Jones was named to the All-District team by the coaches.

No other information had been made available to The Anderson News at press time.

BOYS' SOCCER

Loss to Woodford County ends soccer team's season

From staff reports

Woodford County scored early in the second half, then hung on to beat host Anderson County, 1-0, in the boys' District 25 Soccer Tournament semi-finals last Wednesday.

Woodford went on to take the district title with a 3-0 win over Western Hills the following night. The championship match was moved to Woodford after overnight rains left the Anderson pitch unplayable.

The teams played to a scoreless draw in the first half with Anderson hanging tough with the highly regarded Yellow Jackets through the break.

Anderson had gotten a good chance to score early in the game but Woodford settled down and eventually got the game-winner on a shot by Raul Sanchez from about 30 yards out.

Anderson fought gallantly, turning up the pressure defensively and attacking relentlessly, but unable to get completely through the Woodford defense.

The Bearcats got a good chance late in the game but a close-range shot just missed the mark. The Bearcats desperately tried to score and fought gamely, but the Woodford defense was up to the occasion as the Yellow Jackets advanced.

Anderson finished the season at 11-10-0 while Woodford advanced to this week's regional tournament at 14-3-4. Woodford was to have played 26th District runnerup, Tates Creek, Tuesday in regional tournament play at the Yellow Jackets' home field.

All-tournament

Garrett Pritchert and Hunter Martin were named to the All-District Tournament team by the district's coaches.

Woodford nips Anderson for title

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Few gave Anderson County's girls any kind of a chance against Woodford County in the District 25 soccer tournament final last Thursday.

Woodford was, well, Woodford. That means a perennial Top 15 team, one that has, for the most part, dominated the district. And one that had beaten Anderson 3-0 during the regular season.

To top things off, the district final, originally scheduled for Frankfort's Sower Soccer Complex, was moved to Woodford's home field after rains last weekend left that pitch unplayable in the eyes of the tournament organizers.

In the end, Woodford eked out a 1-0 win to win its second consecutive district crown and its sixth in the eight years the Lady Bearcats and Lady Yellow Jackets have been district foes.

"We played very well against Woodford," Anderson coach Jason Earnest said. "If you hear some people describe it, they will probably say Woodford dominated the game, however, in my eyes, that isn't true at all."

Woodford held possession for most of the game, but Earnest countered, "That has become our game plan. We do not have the depth and talent to match up with these teams we have been playing on a very tough schedule. We are a blue-collar, hard-working and defensive team. We lost so much talent last year, we spent half the year trying to find our new identity....We just do not have the same type of personnel as we had the last three years."

Over the final month of the season, the Lady Bearcats became a defensive team, conceding possession but guarding the net as it their lives depended on it. Two nights before, post-season life did depend on it as Anderson got an early goal and made it stand to upset Franklin County.

"Now that we are more defensive, we may not get many scoring chances ourselves, but we are defending well enough that the only chance our opponents are getting are outside shots, corner kicks or free kicks when a foul is called," Earnest said.

"When you have a great goalkeeper like Emily Mager, it allows us to do that because she can handle outside shots, crosses and free kicks and make it look easy."

The Lady Bearcats used that formula to remain tied for 59 minutes, but Woodford intercepted an errant Anderson pass, then after the Jackets were forced away from the goal, L.J. Phelps hit a cross just before going out of bounds. "It was high, and had an awkward spin on the ball," Earnest said. "Mager had initially taken two steps forward, but the ball was over her head at that point and landed in the far backside of the goal, just inside the post. It was an awkward goal, but a goal nonetheless."

Anderson County's Courtney Fallis tries to keep possession against Franklin County's Alexis Paige. The Lady Bearcats kept high-scoring Franklin out of the net to earn their 12th regional tournament berth in 13 seasons.

It would be all that Woodford could get or need, but with 11 minutes to play, Mager and defender Niki Curtsinger both went down in a hard collision with knee injuries. Seconds earlier, Maddy Ruble had injured her foot as well, forcing the Lady Bearcats to take all three out at the same time.

"This definitely affected our ability to defend and attack," Earnest said. "However, our girls didn't quit. We had three very good chances to tie it up with under five minutes remaining. We just weren't able to tie it up."

Three Anderson players named all tournament

Mager, Taylor Clark and Caitlyn Maillet were named to the All-District team by the coaches.

Regional tournament under way

Anderson was to have played at District 26 champion Tates Creek in the first round of the 13th Region Tournament Tuesday night after press time. Woodford and Henry Clay were to play in the other semi-final. A report will appear in next week's Anderson News but will be available at www.theandersonnews.com as soon as possible after each tourney game.

her shot from the left wing. Franklin goalie Megan Gearhart could only get a finger on the ball but could not alter its path enough.

"We felt it would be like our history with Henry Clay," Earnest said of the regional foe that has eliminated the Lady Bearcats the last three seasons by a total score of 4-0. "Once they would get ahead of us, our kids would start thinking about that.

We thought it might be the same with Franklin County and us. We thought Franklin would be in the same role we have been in when we played Henry Clay."

Earnest's hunch was spot-on.

Franklin dominated play for 100 yards, but could do little inside the last 20. The Flyers pounded the Anderson net as unofficial statistics had them with a 15-4 advantage in shots on goal.

They had many other attempts just wide of either upright that were not included in the total.

Lady Bearcat goalie Emily Mager showed why she is considered one of the state's best with an assortment of saves ranging from the easy to difficult to the did-you-believe-that?

Mager's most spectacular stop came with less than nine minutes to play when she tipped former Anderson player Allison Parent's bullet just below the crossbar. The ball then hit the bar, bounding high into the air. Franklin could not score on the rebound.

"We knew Emily had to be big for us tonight," Earnest said, before grinning, "and she was."

A minute earlier, Mager had made an eye-popping save on a free kick as Franklin was desperately trying to find some way into the Anderson net. Already frustrated, the Lady Flyers appeared visibly panicked over the final 15 minutes as the gravity of their situation set in.

At the same time, Anderson's confidence grew with every tick of the scoreboard clock. "We went into our defensive mode," Clark smiled.

With 15:45 to play, Franklin appeared to have tied it as a free kick had sailed past Mager, but Clark, guarding the left upright, managed to head the ball out of the net. "That one was very big," Earnest said.

"We teach someone to stand there and cover the post, but we don't always do it. It was huge."

From that point, Anderson was content to play long ball, just kicking over the top of the Franklin defense and forcing the Lady Flyers to use precious time simply getting the ball upfield. "Anything to delay the game," Earnest said.

Franklin's best chance of scoring, however, might have been on a first half breakaway, but somehow, Mary Lee came out of nowhere for a clear.

"The defensive line was amazing," said Mager, who was still shaking with excitement about 10 minutes after the final horn. "Tori Yeaste, Andrea (Melanson), Niki Curtsinger and Mary Lee were amazing."

Time after time, the line thwarted Franklin attacks with clears or just disrupting the flow of the Flyer offense.

"This was the best defense we have played all year, except, maybe, when we beat Murray," Earnest said. "The defense was so good because Franklin County is such a good offensive team."

Franklin, 15-4-2, had come into the tournament averaging nearly five goals a contest.

But Anderson had come in with a bit of a chip on its shoulder, the result of a slew of close losses and a perceived lack of respect.

"People were talking about Anderson County not being in the Top 30 this year and things like that," Mager said. "We wanted to prove them wrong."

Need phone service?
Wireless Service is now available from Bluegrass Cellular.

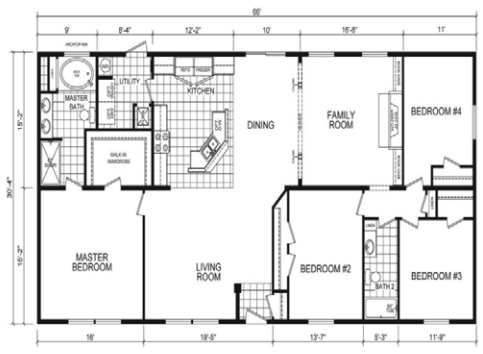

Under the federal and state Lifeline and Link-Up program, eligible low-income consumers can receive up to $13.50 monthly credit with a $17.50 one-time activation fee for wireless service. You may be eligible if you participate in one of the following programs:
- Medicaid
- Food Stamps
- Supplemental security income
- Federal Public Housing Assistance
- Temporary Assistance To Needy Families (TANF)
- National School Lunch's Free Lunch Program (NSL)
- Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP)
- And you have paid any outstanding balance for telephone services provided to you or any member of your household at your current address.

With the Lifeline & Link-Up benefit, you could receive quality wireless service from Bluegrass Cellular for as little as $6.50 per month, with a one-time activation fee of only $17.50*! If you have proof of participation in any of the above programs, visit your nearest Bluegrass Cellular Customer Care Center to sign up for service. If you need to provide proof of participation, visit your local Community Action office or Cabinet for Health & Family Services to obtain a Certification form for Lifeline/Link-Up, or other certified proof of participation. Bring in the completed form to any local Bluegrass Cellular Customer Care Center for an associate to assist you with service activation.

*Restrictions and regulations apply. For the Bluegrass Cellular Customer Care Center nearest you, call 1-800-928-2355 or consult your local area telephone directory.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF PERIODIC SETTLEMENT OF MINOR

The following periodic settlement has been filed and set for hearing on Nov. 9, 2011 at 9 a.m. Exceptions to this settlement must be filed with Anderson District Court prior to the hearing.

Estate of: Danielle Faith Franklin

Guardian: Hope L. Franklin

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court, the Master Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Thursday, October 27, 2011, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The property shall be sold to raise the amounts hereinafter set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):

(1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest at the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.

(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.

(3) Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff. Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if it so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder as the successful bidder's cost.

(4) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of American or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.

61% of Kentuckians say newspapers are their primary source for advertising information .

13% mentioned another medium.

That's a 4½-to-1 advantage for newspapers.

If it were a basketball game, you'd be leaving at half-time.

This fact brought to you by the Kentucky Press Association and its 162 member newspapers.

Source: Advertising and Media Use in Kentucky (June 2010, American Opinion Research)
